

The institutional transformation of social transformation of social policy in East Central Europe : Poland and Hungary in comparative and historical perspective

Citation for published version (APA):

Polakowski, M. (2010). The institutional transformation of social transformation of social policy in East Central Europe : Poland and Hungary in comparative and historical perspective. [Doctoral Thesis, Maastricht University]. Boekenplan. <https://doi.org/10.26481/dis.20101221mp>

Document status and date:

Published: 01/01/2010

DOI:

10.26481/dis.20101221mp

Document Version:

Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Please check the document version of this publication:

- A submitted manuscript is the version of the article upon submission and before peer-review. There can be important differences between the submitted version and the official published version of record. People interested in the research are advised to contact the author for the final version of the publication, or visit the DOI to the publisher's website.
- The final author version and the galley proof are versions of the publication after peer review.
- The final published version features the final layout of the paper including the volume, issue and page numbers.

Link to publication

General rights

Copyright and moral rights for the publications made accessible in the public portal are retained by the authors and/or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

- Users may download and print one copy of any publication from the public portal for the purpose of private study or research.
- You may not further distribute the material or use it for any profit-making activity or commercial gain
- You may freely distribute the URL identifying the publication in the public portal.

If the publication is distributed under the terms of Article 25fa of the Dutch Copyright Act, indicated by the "Taverne" license above, please follow below link for the End User Agreement:

www.umlib.nl/taverne-license

Take down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us at:

repository@maastrichtuniversity.nl

providing details and we will investigate your claim.

Download date: 20 Apr. 2024

Propositions accompanying the thesis:

THE INSTITUTIONAL TRANSFORMATION OF SOCIAL POLICY IN EAST CENTRAL EUROPE: POLAND AND HUNGARY IN COMPARATIVE AND HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

By Michał Polakowski

1. Reforms of public policy take place more often than social scientists assume. Social scientists often do not pay attention to them because they fail as often as they succeed. However, failed attempts to policy reform are important to study as they reveal actors' intentions, and the very fact of their attempt affects the development of institutions.
2. Introducing public policy changes takes time.
3. There is variety of Eastern European capitalisms.
4. There is no one single post-socialist welfare state regime
5. Unlike in physics, in public policy we cannot repeat the same type of empirical tests. Social and physical 'realities' are linked but they are qualitatively different.
6. During state-socialism not everything was social engineering, some social policy programs developed due to social needs.
7. If you look for the sources of institutional evolution, you might find them in a distant past, where few scholars often search.
8. Politicians think and promise that they make change happen, but such control over the institutional shape of public policies can be only illusory.
9. Homo sovieticus was not created during the domination of the Soviet Union. It was the collapse of communism and the triumph of market capitalism that created homo sovieticus.
10. The privatisation of social policy does not necessarily mean the introduction of cuts. It often means empowering the private sector at the expense of the public one.