

Legal reforms for economic development in Africa: How effective?

Citation for published version (APA):

Ogo, I. (2018). Legal reforms for economic development in Africa: How effective? A comparative investigation of legal reforms to improve public debt management in Nigeria and Rwanda. [Doctoral Thesis, Maastricht University]. Datawyse / Universitaire Pers Maastricht. <https://doi.org/10.26481/dis.20180124io>

Document status and date:

Published: 01/01/2018

DOI:

10.26481/dis.20180124io

Document Version:

Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Please check the document version of this publication:

- A submitted manuscript is the version of the article upon submission and before peer-review. There can be important differences between the submitted version and the official published version of record. People interested in the research are advised to contact the author for the final version of the publication, or visit the DOI to the publisher's website.
- The final author version and the galley proof are versions of the publication after peer review.
- The final published version features the final layout of the paper including the volume, issue and page numbers.

Link to publication

General rights

Copyright and moral rights for the publications made accessible in the public portal are retained by the authors and/or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

- Users may download and print one copy of any publication from the public portal for the purpose of private study or research.
- You may not further distribute the material or use it for any profit-making activity or commercial gain
- You may freely distribute the URL identifying the publication in the public portal.

If the publication is distributed under the terms of Article 25fa of the Dutch Copyright Act, indicated by the "Taverne" license above, please follow below link for the End User Agreement:

www.umlib.nl/taverne-license

Take down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us at:

repository@maastrichtuniversity.nl

providing details and we will investigate your claim.

Propositions

Legal Reforms for Economic Development in Africa: How Effective?

A Comparative Investigation of Legal Reforms to Improve
Public Debt Management in Nigeria and Rwanda

By Ifeyinwa Ogo

1. Legal reforms for the management of public debt in Nigeria and Rwanda have improved borrowing processes and debt portfolio management.
2. Legal reforms have not effectively restrained government borrowing or necessarily improved government use of debt finance.
3. The limited effectiveness of laws for public debt management can, to a significant extent, be attributed to the benchmarking and measurement of laws. Legal reforms for public debt management were focused on the improvement of government capacity to manage debt portfolios, and not necessarily of the utilisation of public debt.
4. The effectiveness of laws should be measured from the perspective of their outcomes, and evaluated against stated objectives of legal reforms and legal instruments.
5. Law can enable economic development in contemporary Africa.
6. Laws create the mental constructs and intellectual approaches which guide the behaviour of public institutions.
7. Laws interact with organisation-institutions, but are distinct and in a class of their own.
8. The relevance, suitability, and effectiveness of laws for economic development in Africa depend on the vision, definition and objectives of development.
9. Economists threaten the exclusivity and superiority of the legal profession through their unguided exertions in the areas of governance and the rule of law. Lawyers should learn economic modelling in response.