Stellingen/10 prepositions for dissertation

1. Postgraduate outcomes of public health graduates are a key way of evaluating the success of the schools they attended, but not the only way.
2. The moment when a student transforms into a professional is a critical step in their career journey.
3. The career development of public health students is too important to be left to chance.
4. Thousands of individuals' career decisions, taken together, create the workforce ecosystem.
5. Many variables impact the career decisions of individuals, and while some are personal, many are societal.
6. Many variables impact what employers need, how much they can pay their new hires, and how they conduct their hiring; and for government, these variables are often outside that employer's control.
7. Passion for public health is not enough to pay back student loans.
8. Public health is invisible until it is visible.
9. A career is a journey, not a destination.
10. "We should be seizing the opportunity to reimagine and remake the future of the public health system." —John Auerbach, MBA, President and CEO, Trust for America's Health
